Fellow Red Eagles: Memorial Day

Red Eagles;

Today is Memorial Day. Please take a moment to remember and honor those that have served our great country and those that have made the ultimate sacrifice to keep this nation free.

Let us say a prayer for the men and women serving in today's military. If praying isn't your way, then take a moment to remember their service to our country and hope for their safe return.

I think of friends that I have lost in past wars that never had the chance to have children and have a long life. They will never experience the joy I have playing with my grandchildren or the pride I have that my son and daughter turned out "much better than expected". I feel sad for them but I am much richer for having known them. They will be missed.

Again I would like to thank you for your service. It was an honor and privilege to have served with you and the Red Eagles.
